ANTENNA PRODUCTS CORP. AWARDED FAA CONTRACT

PHAZAR CORP, (Nasdaq: ANTP) announced today that Antenna Products Corp., a wholly owned subsidiary, has been awarded an Indefinite Delivery, Indefinite Quantity (IDIQ) contract from the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) for the production of Mark 20 log periodic dipole (LPD) antennas for replacement of existing Mark 20A LPD antennas. The antennas are used in the localizer portion of an Instrument Landing System (ILS). The localizer provides aircraft a reference to the centerline of a runway during an approach for landing.

The contract is for a base year with four option years with a potential value of $3,000,000. The equipment will be manufactured at Antenna Products Corporation's plant in Mineral Wells, Texas.

Antenna Products Corporation designs, manufactures and markets standard and custom antennas, wireless mesh network solutions, guyed and self supported towers, support structures, masts and communication accessories worldwide. Customers include the United States Government, both military and civil agencies, United States Government prime contractors and commercial clients.

Product information is available at www.antennaproducts.com, www.truemeshnetworks.com and www.phazar.com.
